Illustrated Guide to Collectible Trade Stimulators – Volume 2

Revised Edition – Volume 2 Price Guide

This price guide is a companion to the revised edition of Illustrated Guide to Collectible Trade Stimulators, Trade 2 by Richard M. Bueschel, published by Coin Slot Books, Division of Hoflin Publishing Ltd., 4401 Zephyr Street, Wheat Ridge, CO 80033-3299, 303-420-2222 or 800-352-5678. This insert can be removed without damage to the editorial or historical content of the book if desired and can serve as a handy buying-or-selling value reference at auctions, shows, antique shops or flea markets.

The vintage arcade machine prices indicated in this folder correspond to the 100 collectible machines illustrated and described in Trade 2. Similar price guides will be available for all volumes in the series as published. The value classifications are based on a vintage coin machine pricing philosophy advanced by a panel of eight collectors and dealers designed to eliminate the weighted factors of a single owner bias, irrational auction prices — up or down — and the dichotomy of pricing proposed by collectors (buying) and dealers (selling). This philosophy and the six classifications for pricing are explained in detail in this price guide.

Composition of the panel

Actual prices and estimated values have been provided by a panel of eight vintage trade stimulator and counter game collectors, historians and dealers, augmented by data on actual dollar transactions between collectors and dealers as well as open auction prices paid up to the date of pricing where such data is available. The panel of eight was selected to provide as much rational pricing input as practically possible and to provide an equalizer for prices that may inadvertently be based on biased judgements and over-or-under enthusiastic estimates. In addition, the panel members represent the major trade stimulator and counter game collecting areas of the country in order to balance local value irregularities.

The pricing panel is made up of the following members:

Ken Durham, Washington, DC
Tom Gustwiller, Ottawa, OH
Larry Lubliner, Highland Park, IL
Alan Sax, Long Grove, IL
Dick Bueschel, Mt. Prospect, IL
Jack Freund, Springfield, WI
Jeff Frahm, St. Louis, MO
Bill Whelan, Daly City, CA

Each member of the pricing panel brings broad spectrum knowledge to bear on the evaluation of trade stimulators and counter games within their specific area of expertise. As such, each pricing authority therefore contributes both strengths and weakness to the assignment, the latter tempered by the knowledge of the other members of the panel. Final pricing was assembled by the author primarily based on overall averages on the inputs provided.

Pricing Classifications

In line with the trade stimulator and counter game vintage coin machine pricing philosophy, each machine has been priced in six classifications; "Excellent" being near mint and most desirable with "Incomplete" denoting the lowest order of desirability.

The class descriptions used for pricing the machines are as follows:

Incomplete: Non-working, with parts, working components and graphics missing or virtually beyond salvage. Cabinet broken, incomplete or rotted. Paper and instructions damaged or missing. Cosmetic glass severely damaged, broken or missing. "Basket Case." Requires complete restoration.

Rough: Rough condition. Worn out mechanism. Well worn cabinet and graphics. Broken parts. Cosmetic glass badly worn or damaged. Often not working but mechanically complete. Paper worn but intact.

Fair: Machine in good to fair working condition. Now new parts needed. Appearance acceptable but needs work. Paper intact with cosmetic glass usable without touch up or change. Can be made to operate with minor adjustments.

Good: Ready to operate but needs some work. Cabinet, paper, graphics and cosmetic glass in good shape. Needs work on appearance. Good candidate for restoration.

Excellent: Near mint condition, possible brand new with some minor wear and aging acceptable. Cabinet, paper, graphics and cosmetic glass virtually mint. Readily operates.

Restored: Rebuilt and tuned up to mint or even better condition with the understanding that the restored machine retains its original identity and integrity without imaginative or creative changes that alter it from its original. Not too bright, polished or flashy unless required to match original.

Machine Definition

The description of a vintage coin-operated device as a "Trade Stimulator" or "Counter Game" does little to define the actual machine or its working characteristics. Unlike Slot Machines, Arcade Machines, Pinball Machines or Scales, Trade Stimulators and Counter Games were produced in a narrow window of application, with a variety of small points differentiating one class of machine from another. Often the choice of reels, be they fruit, cigarette, color spot, numbers, fortune, dice or other had a significant effect on the operation of the machine, with different machine names often applied. For purposes of clarification the following distinct differences of play and display have been established for identification purposes throughout this series of guides.

- Ball Flip
- Baseball Reel(s)
- Beer Reel(s)
- Candy Vender
- Card Reel(s)
- Cigar Vender
- Cigarette Dice

Using The Prices In This Folder

The vintage machine prices indicated in this folder have been based on averages of current market values of "best estimates" for the machines listed as provided by a panel of eight authorities at the time of publication. These prices should not be regarded as firm buy-or-sell figures but rather should be used as approximate value indicators. Like many fine antiques, vintage coin machine values tend to frequently fluctuate, both up and down, with market values different than those on these pages to be expected at any point in time. Buyers and sellers should expect to pay or receive amounts based on the many current market variables of value, condition, special features and machine popularity — particularly the current "Fad Factor" — at the time of any transaction. While the prices expressed in this folder cannot be expected to reflect the precise market values at variable points in time, they do provide a guide to specific machine desirability and reveal the status relationships between one machine and another.
